CAREER TIPS

Personality Development: The key to acing an interview

Personality as a whole, is the sum total of traits a human is entitled to have – both inner and outer. It is the sole entity that is unique in every person. It constitutes of body language, intuitive intellect, confidence – all the focal points that serve as a differentiator between individuals.

WHY IS A GOOD PERSONALITY APPEALING?

In today's world personality plays as central a role in getting jobs as knowledge and experience.

➤ Improves social skills:

A good personality influences the people around, the charm and aura of a refined personality creates an approachable and friendly image. Your social circle reflects your ability to interact with people and your personality earns you the respect of your peers. It is important for an individual to be polite with others, you cannot inspire respect by being rude to people around you. Your social skill also reflects in your interviews, as the interviewer will keep a close watch on how you carry yourself around other people and how you converse with them.

➤ Increases self-confidence:

A good personality not only inspires confidence in others of your abilities and achievements, but it also gives a boost to your self-confidence. Knowing that you are well groomed and well prepared for any social or professional situation helps you stand firm and clear about who you are. A lot of people struggle with low self-esteem and self-worth, a practice on developing your personality definitely helps with your self-worth, as you see people around you inspired by and at awe of your personality.

➤ Improves communication skills:

Great command over a language is not the only thing needed to be a convincing orator. Take for example all the great leaders of the world and notice how their presence inspires the audience. The more you work on your personality the better you get with your communication skills. Possessing a good personality adds that confidence in your speech and your body language. It's easy to persuade and convince people with your words when it is supported with a strong personality.

➤ Brings positivity and optimism:

Being a confident and strong personality brings positivity in your life. A good personality helps you look at life in a more optimistic light. You become more open and kind towards the people around you and are able to face challenges with a much calmer and clear head. A boost in confidence also helps improve your approach to every problem. It doesn't just help you improve your personal relationship but you also bring a more positive aura to your workspace which helps you stay focused and be more productive.

➤ Reduces conflicts and stress level:

The positivity that a good personality brings also helps you resolve conflicts more easily. It encourages you to look at the greener side of the grass and find the best possible outcomes even in the worst of situations. A good personality helps you create a healthy and long-lasting relationship both in your workplace and your personal life.

It also reduces your stress level, when you look at life from a positive lens it brings a lot of perspective and creates a strong coping method for stress, anxiety and other such issues. With a good personality, you can build a healthy and peaceful state of mind.

HOW TO DEVELOP A GOOD PERSONALITY?

Personality development is not something that happens overnight, it's a gradual process spread out over a period of time and consistency. There are ways, behavior and habits that you can adopt and practice to keep this process going.

a) Gain command over your field. Learn new things.

When talking about a workplace or college or even life in general, a lot of confidence comes from your grasp of a particular field or the knowledge you possess. Knowledge of your field especially helps you in your workspace and job interview, it induces confidence in your abilities and hence helps you appear more confident in your work.

Being open to new experiences and learning new things always helps in improving someone's personality. The more you see and experience of the world the more empathetic you become, empathy improves your understanding and your relationship with your social circle. Learning new things also expands your outlook of the world and does a lot to bring a positive change in your perspective.

b) Think positive, be positive, adopt a positive approach to life.

Being positive and in command of your emotions helps you keep your inner conflicts separate from how you interact with the outside world. Keep in mind that every challenge you are facing is not permanent and that you are capable of getting out of it. Using positive words and adopting a more confident body language will help you bring about changes that you might not even realize.

c) Be patient:

Patience is a very important quality, personality development happens slow and it requires patience. It doesn't just help you deal with your flaws but also be more welcoming about others.

Don't be too harsh on yourself. Give yourself the time you need, every individual grows at their own pace.

d) Dress the part:

Not to say that appearance is everything, but appearance matters for a good personality. A well-groomed and well-dressed person is likely to have more impact and admiration than someone not dressed the part. Pay close attention to how you should appear in different situations, wear clothes that are suitable to the place and occasion. At the same time do not go to extremes, if you are not comfortable in your clothes it will only portray a clumsy and restless personality. Choose clothes that you are comfortable in and make a style statement of your own, avoid copying others, wear what suits you the best.

e) Health is wealth:

A healthy body and mind is always a good thing. Being healthy keeps you at your best and always adds to your charm. A healthy body improves self-confidence and inspires people. It also leads to a healthy mind, keeping you positive and active in your day to day life.

f) Cultivate positive traits and try to let go of negativity:

Avoid criticizing people, be more open, everyone comes with a different personality. Try to not judge people on first impressions. Be sympathetic and good to people. Leave your ego behind, be more humble and down to earth.
